line dispute resolution for consumer disputes implemented in the Member States of the European Union, the European Union established an alternative online dispute resolution (ODR) platform at Union level, available at <http://ec.europa.eu/odr>.

The platform may be used to initiate out-of-court resolution of disputes concerning contractual obligations stemming from online sales or service contracts between a consumer (private individual) resident in the Union and a trader established in the Union. The online dispute resolution platform may also be used to settle financial consumer disputes.

The Regulation should not apply to disputes between consumers and traders that arise from contracts concluded offline and to disputes between traders.

The Regulation directly applies to financial service providers established in Hungary, including Generali Biztosító Zrt, if the insurance contract between the consumer and the insurance company has been concluded by the consumer on the website of the insurance company, or of the insurance intermediary (typically without the engagement of the insurance intermediary) through an application used for contract conclusion.

Pursuant to the Regulation consumers may initiate out-of-court resolution of disputes on the platform. The body authorized for out-of-court resolution of disputes in Hungary is the Financial Arbitration Board.

The National Bank of Hungary issued a consumer advice on the online dispute resolution (ODR) platform, which may be read at: <http://mnb.hu/felugyelet/engedelyezes-es-intezmenyfelugyeles/fogyasztovedelmi-kapcsolattartoknak-szolo-informaciok/online-vitarendezeesi-platform>

VIII. Information on Life, Accident and Illness Insurance (Health Insurance) Policies

VIII.1. Information on taxation

- VIII.1.1. Insurance benefits or proceeds paid to private individuals are exempt from tax if the payout qualifies as a death benefit, accident or illness benefit, or pension benefits or annuities specified as such in the applicable legal act. Private individuals will not incur tax liability in connection with these payouts.
- VIII.1.2. Interest income may be earned if the benefit paid out by the insurance company is not tax exempt, or qualifies as other income or other taxable income (thus, interest income may be earned, in particular, from maturity payments, upon policy surrender or partial surrender). Any benefit payout which exceeds the total of the insurance premiums paid on a policy shall qualify as interest income, on the understanding that risk premiums paid on a policy will not be included in the total of insurance premiums. Interest income may be reduced by 50 percent of the interest income after at least 3 years from the effective date of a single premium policy, or after 6 years from the effective date of a regular premium policy. Interest income may be reduced by 100 percent of the interest income after at least 5 years from the effective date of a single premium policy, or after 10 years from the effective date of a regular premium policy.

With respect to calculating interest income, top-up premiums paid on a policy will be regarded by the company as payments made on separate, single-premium policies. The insurance company is required to deduct 15% of personal income tax from the interest income. Private individuals are not required to declare this income and the reduced tax in their tax return.

- VIII.1.3. The part of any income replacement benefit or a benefit calculated on the basis of the number of days covered, in excess of daily HUF 15,000, paid out on accident, casualty and medical care policies taken out by a paying agent shall be subject to taxes as other income (subject to the rules on income replacement). Tax advances payable on taxable income shall be deducted by the insurance company from the proceeds or benefit payouts. Please, note that private individuals are required to declare this income on their tax returns.
- VIII.1.4. Income earned from the surrender or partial surrender of 'death only' life insurance policies taken out for an indeterminate policy term, which exceeds the total of taxable premiums paid by the paying agent (employer) and the premiums paid by the private individual shall be taxable as other income, provided that any paying agent (employer) has paid tax exempt premium on the same policy. Upon benefit payment, the insurance company deducts 15% of personal income tax advance from the tax base determined in accordance with the effective regulations. Please, note that private individuals are required to declare this income on their tax returns, while they are also required to declare and pay 19,5% health care contribution on this income.

If the beneficiary of any insurance benefit is not a private individual (e.g.: business entity), then – by way of derogation from the above provision – the insurance company will not determine any tax liability, but the beneficiary will be obliged to account for the income received from the insurance company, and shall declare the related tax liability in compliance with the applicable legislative provisions.

- VIII.1.5. In respect of pension insurance policies which meet the statutory criteria and have taken or will take effect on or after January 1, 2014, the private individual policyholder may request that 20 percent but maximum HUF 130 000 of the personal income tax he/she would be required to pay on the aggregate taxable income earned during the tax year and reduced by other tax reliefs, should be credited to his/her pension insurance policy.

Policyholders are provided with detailed information at the time when they take out the insurance.

- VIII.1.6. Since the legislative provisions described in the foregoing may change from time to time, we kindly advise you to continuously monitor legislative changes, particularly changes or amendments to the act on personal income tax, the act on health care contribution, and the act on the rules of taxation, in your own interest. We regularly update the notice on the effective rules on our corporate website.

VIII.2. Changes allowed to the technical interest rate

In respect of life, accident and illness insurance (health insurance), the insurance company is allowed to modify the technical interest rate during the term of the insurance policy, provided that such modification only takes place if the maximum technical interest rate specified in the legislation has also been modified. The extent of the modification may not exceed the maximum rate specified in the legislation.

IX. Refund of Value Added Tax

Please be advised that in the context of its obligation arising from or in relation to insurance policies, the insurance company can only reimburse the value-added tax (VAT) imposed on the price of services required for restoring the conditions which existed before the occurrence of the loss or damage or for eliminating the effects of the loss or damage suffered, subject to VAT (purchase costs of materials, repair and restoration costs), where the amount of VAT is shown on the invoice, or where the amount of VAT can be calculated on the basis of the invoice, provided that the beneficiary is not refunded the VAT from general government budgets under the regulations to which it is subject.

X. Information on Residence for Tax Purposes

- X.1. Pursuant to Act XXXVII of 2013 on the rules of international public administration cooperation related to taxes and other public duties (hereinafter: Aktv.), and pursuant to Act XIX of 2014 on the promulgation of the Agreement between the Government of Hungary and the Government of the United States of America to Improve International Tax Compliance and to Implement FATCA and on the amendment of other related acts (hereinafter: FATCA Act), the insurance company is required to check the tax residence of customers and for that purpose it shall process the necessary data and statements of customers. If the policyholder or the beneficiary of insurance proceeds and benefits qualifies as a US or other foreign resident for tax purposes, then pursuant to the Aktv and FATCA Act, the insurance company will transfer the information pertaining to such person as well as to the insurance policy to the Tax Office, to promote the automated exchange of information.
- X.2. Pursuant to data and legal statement made by the policyholder or the beneficiary of insurance proceeds and payments, the insurance company will determine whether or not the insurance policy is a "reportable account"; moreover, the insurance company is entitled to reclassify the account after the contract is concluded in the cases set out in the Aktv. and in the FATCA Act. The insurance company will continuously monitor data required for the due diligence procedure of tax residency as well as policy values related to its insurance policy portfolio to detect any significant change thereto as defined in the Aktv. and the FATCA Act.
- X.3. A detailed written notice on the due diligence procedure related to tax residency is available at generali.hu/adouguyilletekseg.

XI. Interest on Late Payment

If the insurance premium is paid after its due date, the insurance company may claim interest on late payment in the amount set out in Section 6:48. (1) of the Act on the Civil Code (hereinafter: Civil Code).

If the policyholder obliged to pay the premium has to be considered as an undertaking or contracting authority according to Act IX of 2016 about Recovery Costs, the insurance company, in addition to default interest, may lay claim to recovery costs defined in the abovementioned act in case of late payment of the premium.

XII. Administration fee

The insurance company may charge an administration fee for certain procedures in order to recover the costs that incurred in relation to such procedures. The general, special and additional terms may contain further rules regarding administration fee.

XIII. Rules of Accounting for Insurance Premiums Paid

If the policyholder is in arrears with the insurance premium payable on his/her policy/policies, and a payment made by the Policyholder to the insurance company is not enough to cover all his/her debts, the policyholder's payment made in arrears on his/her insurance policy (or policies) will be allocated in accordance with the effective regulations. In the absence of regulations, the payment will be allocated in the following order: principal debt (insurance premiums arrears), interest on late payment, administration fee.

If the policyholder is in arrears with several insurance premiums under the same insurance policy (owes the insurance company several premium instalments), and the policyholder's payment does not cover all the arrears, the payment will be used to cover the older arrears.

XIV. Method of Payment

- XIV.1. The parties to the insurance policy may agree on any of the following methods of payment for settling the insurance premium:
- postal payment order (postal remittance form) – the insurance company sends the policyholder a postal remittance order with the due premium in accordance with the selected premium payment frequency, which the policyholder will use to make the payment.
  - direct debit authorization (for the collection of payments) – the policyholder authorizes his/her account holder bank to regularly debit the payer's account with the due insurance premiums,
  - wire transfer order – before the due date of the premium payment (in accordance with the selected premium payment frequency), the insurance company sends the policyholder a pro forma invoice, and the policyholder will transfer the amount shown on the pro forma invoice to the insurance company.
- XIV.2. In the absence of a postal remittance form, a pro forma invoice or any other document issued by the insurance company to facilitate premium payment, the policyholder is required to pay the due premium via postal remittance or at the nearest customer service office of the insurance company by reference to the policy number.
- XIV.3. In exceptional cases, the policyholder may use other payment methods to pay the due premium. Customers may get further information about these payment methods by visiting the insurance company's website (generali.hu), or contacting the insurance company's agents or customer service points.

XV. Insurance Intermediary

- XV.1. Insurance policies may be sold by tied insurance intermediaries or independent insurance intermediaries or ancillary insurance intermediaries.
- XV.2. Tied insurance intermediaries (agents) are engaged in selling insurance products based on their relationship with the Insurance company. Tied insurance intermediaries may be multiple agents who are contracted with several insurance companies at the same time, and sell competitive products of such insurers. insurance company is obliged to the restitution of any non-material violation of one's rights relating to personality.

- XV.3. Independent insurance intermediaries may also be brokers who act in representation of the customer, and sell competitive products of such insurers.

Any loss or damage caused by violation of the rules of professional conduct by independent insurance intermediaries or their negligence in complying with such rules, shall be their sole liability. If the policyholder has applied for and been granted a discount which affect premium rates, and the conditions which allowed the policyholder to be eligible to the discount have changed or no longer exist (e.g.: in the case of direct debit authorization for the collection of payments, the payment could not be made because the authorization was not given or has been withdrawn), the policyholder will no longer be eligible to the discount and will be required to pay the insurance premium determined with standard rates (without the discount).

In such a case the premium determined without the discount becomes due when the insurance company first sends out the respective payment notice (pro forma invoice, postal remittance form) or first tries to collect the payment (direct debit).
